Early adolescence is a distinct period of human growth and development between childhood and adolescence. During this remarkable period, young adolescents (10- to 15-year-olds) experience rapid and significant change. Recognizing and understanding the unique developmental characteristics associated with human growth) of early adolescence and their implications for an educational program (i.e., curriculum, instruction, and assessment) of the middle school (e.g., flexible block scheduling, advisory teaching) are central tenets of middle grades education.
