Book : Good government in the Tropics. 1997 pp.xi + 221 pp. ref.21 pp. of Abstract : The book examines why governments in countries of the Tropics do so badly, and what causes them to do well, but comes up with suggestions that challenge many of the commonly held reasons. Four case studies are presented in which bureaucracies at work under the direction of an innovative state government are examined, which examine issues associated with the organization of the public sector, public service delivery, decentralization, and the interaction between government and society. Each case represents a different sector: rural preventive health; sn development; agricultural extension for small farmers; and employment cre works construction and drought relief.
