Type of Research:	Book
Creators:	Breward, Christopher and Gilbert, David
Description:	This collection of essays was published in 2006 by Berg Publishers. It explores the development of London as a global fashion capital, alongside other cities such as New York, Paris, Milan, and Tokyo. The book examines the ways in which fashion has shaped the city's identity and its role in the global economy. Whilst individual studies of fashion in different cities are included, the book also considers the broader concept of the 'fashion city' and the ways in which fashion has shaped the city's identity and its role in the global economy. The editorial approach follows a thematic structure, exploring fashion culture, the ways in which fashion has shaped the city's identity, and representations across a range of media, from fashion production and consumption to fashion in film and television. The book supported and researched in the fields of fashion sociology, fashion studies, and fashion history, and is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the ways in which fashion has shaped the city's identity and its role in the global economy. Alongside new readings of the city's fashion history, the book also includes a consideration of cities whose fashion industries are emerging, such as Moscow, Dakar and Mumbai.
