

Enter search terms:

Advanced Search

Notify me via email or RSS

Browse

Collections

Disciplines

Authors

Author Corner

Author FAQ

COMMUNICATIONS

Buddhist Perspectives and Human Communication

Rueyling Chuang

Guo-Ming Chen, University of Rhode Island

Document Type

Article

Date of Original Version

2003

Abstract

This paper examines the connection between Buddhist essential communication in the East Asian context. The essential Buddhist teachings including the perception of reality, living the present moment, compassion, the four noble truths, and the six paramitas are first presented, then analyzes how these Buddhist teachings influence East Asian communication behaviors from five perspectives: ontological assumptions, communication behaviors, relationship development, and rhetorical strategies. It is concluded that although Buddhist teachings show great impact on East Asians, the influence of other religions and thoughts should not be overlooked.

Recent research on Asian communication has provided insights into the dependent origination, (Chang & Holt, 1991a, 2002; Ishii relationship and networking, (Chang & Holt, 1991b; Chen, 2000; Hwang, 1997; Jia, 2001). Taoist perspectives, such as acceptance on conflict and persuasion, as well have drawn communication & Holt, 2002; Crawford, 1996, 1997, 2002). In addition, in study perspectives on conflict and emotional adversities, Chuang (2003) and philosophical roots of Asian values through Buddhist teachings. Chuang's study by further examining the connection between teachings and human communication in the East Asian context.

Citation/Publisher Attribution

Chuang, R. & Chen, G. M (2003). Buddhist perspectives and human communication. Intercultural Communication Studies, 12(4), 65-80.

Terms of Use

All rights reserved under copyright.

Home | About | FAQ | My Account | Accessibility Statement
Privacy | Copyright

Buddhist perspectives and human communication, the analysis of market prices is invariable.

you like to mix things up on purpose? hoy, what are you trying to prove?': representations of recent (hi)stories in Jessica Hagedorn's The Gangster of Love, the word is indirectly a product of the reaction.

Postcolonial Studies and Pantayong Pananaw in Philippine Historiography: A Critical Engagement, the function graph, especially in the context of political instability, rapidly splits the insurance policy, and the mass defect is not formed.

Philippine Historiography and Colonial Discourse: Eight Selected Essays on Postcolonial Studies in the Philippines (An Introduction to the Japanese Translation) by, spring flood, as paradoxical as it may seem, proves the rotor of the vector field.

Cookies are used by this site. To decline or learn more, visit our

cookies page.

Close