Abstract

This thesis explores traditional philosophies of M ori motherhood. Drawing from traditional accounts of our cosmologies, from m teatea, whakatauki and pakiwaitara, it seeks to uncover aspects of our maternities that for many M ori mothers today have become buried under the plethora of Western maternal knowledges.

M ori maternities represent a conflicted space for M ori women and wh nau in contemporary Aotearoa/New Zealand. Colonisation has acted to significantly corrupt a traditionally... Read more
