Title

Surface to surface: war, image & the senses in the screenic era

Authors

Schrag, Adam

Issue Date

Type

Thesis or Dissertation

Abstract

The dissertation investigates the entanglement of war and media technologies from the 1960s to the present in the context of the Vietnam, Persian Gulf, and Iraq Wars. I develop a concept of 'the screenic' to address both the phenomenological and ecological aspects of the screen and other junctures of sensory and technological networks of war.
