Lewis Carroll photographer: the l

Taylor, Roger J. ; Wakeling, E.

Subject: RAE 2008, UoA 63 Art and Design

Citation: Taylor, R.J and Wakeling, E. (2002) Lewis Carroll Press.

Description:

Ever since 1949 when Helmut Gernsheim published the first book on Carrollian photography there have been numerous articles dealing with the subject, virtually all based on secondary sources and supposition. This book draws on their extensive and unpublished holdings of Carroll photographs and the work of Carrollian scholar, Edward Wakeling. His comprehensive register includes a transcription of his diaries, correspondence, and a register of his photographs. Accessing this group of fundamentally important primary sources was a collaborative project was to create the first scholarly account of Wakeling's register along with an illustration of every image from his twenty-four year career as an amateur photographer, and to create an accurate chronology of individual photographs and to correct misunderstandings surrounding Carroll's photographs of children. The book was well received, with one review claiming that it was 'a gem' and offers a rare glimpse into the life and times of Victorian photographer and public and impart a new appreciation for the creative genius of Lewis Carroll. <http://press.princeton.edu/titles/7241.html> Award winner of the 2002 New York Book Show Award and Winner of 2002 New York Book Show Award.
