This publication is respectfully dedicated to the memory of William Kirker Bixby, special friend and volunteer at CLRC from 1974 to 1986.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS
Completing this expanded edition about girls series books involved a number of contributors, revisors, and special gifts. The first edition covered the years 1900 to 1975, and involved work by volunteers William Kirker Bixby and Mary Rapson along with staff members David Benidt and Margaret Nevinski. During the past two years, staff member Deidre Johnson spearheaded the work toward this volume. When she left the university staff for a teaching position, Carolyn Davis assumed the final wrap-up tasks of making corrections and preparing the final copy.

Many other individuals participated in the project. J. Randolph Cox, librarian at St. Olaf College and Volunteer Consultant to the Hess Collection, continues to catalog the series books. He also provided information on the Whitman editions. Edward T. LeBlanc, Editor of the Dime-Novel Round-Up, assisted with the dime novel series of My Queen and donated series books to fill gaps. University Reference Librarian Dennis Lien worked on the nineteenth century and science fiction series. Members of the Society of Phantom Friends submitted corrections and additions to the earlier edition through the interceding years. Lois Ringquist and other staff at the Children's and Young Adult departments of the Minneapolis Public Library advised on the contemporary series, while Dr. John T. Dizer provided information on older series. Claudette Hegel Comfort helped with the later Trixie Belden publication dates. The Wilson Library Reference Department shared the OCLC terminal for verifying entries.

Children's Literature Research Collections (CLRC) staff Lori Leirdahl and students Lynn McKay and Christine Scovill verified entries, while Jacalyn Simacek, Lynn McKay, and Johanna Reed typed them.

University Library Administration and Management staff supporting aspects of this project include John Howe, Interim University Librarian, Thomas Shaughnessy, University Librarian, Joe Branin and Cynthia Steinke, Library Directors, and Frank Immler, Head, Collection Development. David Klaassen, Archivist at the Social Welfare History Archives, provided his computer and printer for the preparation of the final copy.

The Saint Paul Foundation, which supported the earlier publication, continues to support Hess Collection projects. To celebrate the 35th anniversary of the Hess Collection's arrival at the University of Minnesota Libraries, a Hess Symposium was held in June of 1991 in the Arthur Upson Room of Walter Library. Among the attendees were The Saint Paul Foundation President Paul A. Verret, staff liaison Edie Meisner and board member Ronald H. Hubbs. The foundation also provided funds for preparing this publication. William Kirker Bixby Memorial funds were designated by his daughters Elizabeth Bixby and Deborah Bixby Knutsen toward the completion of this project, on which "Bix" worked so many years as a volunteer.

FOREWORD

Almost fifteen years have elapsed since the Children's Literature Research Collections (CLRC) issued GIRLS' SERIES BOOKS 1900-1975, the first published checklist of American series for girls and younger children. As its introduction noted, it was intended as "a service for the librarian building similar collections, the scholar working in popular culture or children's literature, and the collector attempting to acquire a complete series." It encompassed series published between 1900 and 1975, including nineteenth-century series that continued into the twentieth century. At that time, a companion volume - this volume - was envisioned for earlier nineteenth-century girls’ series. Since then, several factors combined to make an updated comprehensive volume more desirable. New series have been created since 1975; several ongoing series encompassed additional titles; others from 1900-
INTRODUCTION

Nineteenth-Century Series

Although the origins of contemporary series can be found in their nineteenth-century predecessors, series books have changed over time. The earliest series, originating during the middle third of that century, are heavily didactic, designed to convey moral and educational information. Many use younger children as protagonists. Rather than centering on children’s adventures or travels, they describe the guilt or unhappiness caused by misbehavior, the protagonists’ struggle to do right, and their eventual reconciliation with friends, family, and God - or the horrible consequences that befall those who fail to reform. Others contain lengthy passages about geography, history, or nature with only minimal story. Additionally, authors often developed thematic series, linked by concept rather than characters. FLOWERETS, for example, consists of six books, each with a different protagonist, illustrating the Ten Commandments.

Even when a nineteenth-century series uses continuing characters, this does not always mean they appear in prominent roles in each book. Since reform is a popular theme, a character may act as protagonist in one title, then, having triumphed over temptation, take a minor part in subsequent stories. An example of this can be found in the HOLLYWOOD STORIES, which, according to the subtitle of the first volume, shows "How Some City Boys and Girls Spent Their First Spring in the Country; How They Agreed To Be Young Christs, and What Kind of Companions They Found in Daisyfield." Other times, continuing characters appear in some titles, but not all. Frank and Flossy Lee have major roles in some RIVERDALE STORIES (set in and around the town of Riverdale), minor parts in others, and no parts in a few. It was not until after the 1860s that series placed greater emphasis upon character and plot. Even then, didacticism and instruction remained, as evidenced by the many pious passages in ELSIE DINSMORE or the geographical or historical discussions in Early nineteenth-century series present a particular challenge to bibliographers. The initial difficulty lies in identifying them. A few authors, such as Jacob Abbott, are well known, but many other prolific writers from the period never appear in histories of children's literature. The series listed in this bibliography were found by cross-checking promising entries in the CLRC’s chronological catalogue and the Philadelphia Free Library’s Checklist of Children’s Books 1837-1876 against the NUC Pre-1956 Imprints and the American Catalogue, and through advertisements in the books themselves. A second obstacle is recognizing American series, for so little is apparently known about some authors that the same title can be catalogued as American fiction in one NUC entry and British fiction in the next. This volume includes titles in debate, believing they are of interest to the reader.

A third problem arises in identifying a true series, for the terms "series" and "library" were used loosely in the 1800s. A "library" can be either titles with related characters or an overall theme or it can mean unrelated titles, sometimes reissues, in a uniform format. Without access to many of the books or detailed information about them, it is frequently difficult to tell whether a book is actually part of a series. It is also difficult to ascertain whether a book contains one story or a story collection. Those which were clearly unrelated titles or story collections--such as "Aunt Fanny's" Nightcaps or Popguns books--have been omitted. There is still a need for a more comprehensive bibliography of nineteenth-century series, one encompassing boys', girls', and miscellaneous series, for several of the girls' series were companion series to ones for boys. Notes at the end of those entries mention the companion series, but do not give detailed listings.

Contemporary Series
The last fifteen years have witnessed major developments in children’s series. Paperback series, once predominantly the domain of religious publishers, appeared with increasing frequency in the late 1970s, and as of this writing almost all major publishing houses have paperback imprints for children. The new format led to a renaissance in the genre. Girls’ Series Books 1900-1975 listed only three series published between 1970 and 1975; since then, over 230 additional series have appeared. These new series reflect current publishing trends, which, ironically, hearken back to the approach used by dime novel publishers: many series are owned or controlled by publishers, who employ a variety of pseudonymous writers to meet monthly or bimonthly publication schedules.

Three categories of series have become more prominent since 1975. One is thematic, typified by series such as SWEET DREAMS or SUNFIRE. These contain books by different authors, centering on a particular theme (frequently romance), and do not use continuing characters. The books bear the series title and usually a volume number on the cover or spine. Easy-readers or "chapter books," (i.e., books with short chapters, designed for beginning readers), such as EAGLE-EYE ERNIE or JENNY ARCHER, form the second category. These feature continuing characters in light adventures or mysteries; the books use large type, simple sentence structure, and often a limited vocabulary.

A third category, interactive fiction, emerged in the 1970s. Rather than a continuing narrative, interactive fiction offers multiple story choices and different endings. Books in series like HEARTQUEST or FOLLOW YOUR HEART ROMANCES ask the reader to decide which of several actions she would take at crucial points throughout the story then direct her to the appropriate page, resulting in stories that can be reread with a different outcome each time.

Several other tactics, occasionally evident in older series, continue in newer books. One is the series based on a common location. For example, the FEAR STREET horror series, heavily influenced by movies such as Nightmare on Elm Street, follows the terrifying experiences of different characters living on or near the aptly-titled Fear Street. ROOTS OF LOVE traces the romances and personal problems of several members of two California dynasties. Another approach employs continuing characters in secondary roles, helping protagonists featured in only one book of the series. The waitress and the owner of HEART BREAK CAFE serve as unifying elements in a series about the love lives of different customers frequenting the cafe. Some volumes in the long-running SWEET VALLEY HIGH titles also use this method. Still others, such as SLEEPOVER FRIENDS and BABYSITTERS CLUB, feature a rotating cast of protagonists, with each taking the lead every fourth or fifth book.

The phenomenal popularity of some series has also engendered spinoffs. SWEET VALLEY HIGH began in 1983 with the adventures of two sixteen-year-old twins, Elizabeth and Jessica. Three years later, SWEET VALLEY TWINS began running concurrently, chronicling the pair's adventures as twelve-year-olds. SWEET VALLEY KIDS, started in 1989, shows Jessica and Elizabeth at seven. Nancy Drew became two different series in 1986, when Simon & Schuster created NANCY DREW FILES, more sophisticated mysteries for older readers, while continuing the ever-popular NANCY DREW MYSTERY STORIES for middle grades. Nancy also acts as a minor character in RIVER HEIGHTS, a romance series set in her home town. Publishers also discovered the appeal of "specials"—longer books, issued once or twice a year, using the same characters as in regular series. Consequently, many series actually have a sub-series of "Special" volumes, such as SWEET VALLEY HIGH SUPER EDITIONS or SWEET VALLEY HIGH...
SUPER THRILLERS, or, in the case of Nancy Drew, NANCY DREW/HARDY BOYS SUPER MYSTERIES.

As with their predecessors, series from the 1970s and 1980s treat a variety of topics, appealing to a wide range of interests. Mystery and romance prevail, typified by series such as HART AND SOUL, JODY AND JAKE, KATE CLANCY, SUSAN SAND (all mysteries) or CAPRICE, SENIORS, WILDFIRE (romance). Other areas covered include animal stories (ANIMAL INN, BLUE RIBBON, SADDLE CLUB), fantasy (ABRACADABRA, HAUNTING WITH LOUISA), school stories (CHEERLEADERS, CLASS OF '88, HOMEROOM, JUNIOR HIGH, KIDS OF POLK STREET SCHOOL), glamorous careers (ALL THAT GLITTERS, CENTER STAGE, KELLY BLAKE), historical fiction (AMERICAN GIRLS, ORPHAN TRAIN, SUNFIRE), sports (PINK PARROTS, RUTH MARINI), science fiction (PLANET BUILDERS), and horror (DARK FORCES, FINAL FRIENDS).

Several series have adopted unusual approaches. PRIVATE SCHOOL, undoubtedly influenced by several science fiction movies, tells of a girl whose boarding school is taken over by aliens. FIREBRATS is set in the United States after the devastation caused by World War II. The HEART TO HEART series is actually two books in one: the first chronicles the protagonist’s life at age fourteen; the second picks up three years later. In short, girls' series are again big business, and a new generation of readers are discovering the pleasure of following a favorite character through numerous adventures.

Definitions
As with the earlier edition, Girls' Series Books 1840-1990 lists American fictional series books for girls, this time including those series that began between 1840 and 1990. As with the previous edition, this includes many "tots" series-i.e., series for younger children featuring protagonists of both genders--and series with toys, but excludes animal series. Many of the parameters used for the original edition remain, specifically:

American books are defined as having an American author or being published first in the United States of America. . . "Fictional" stories are imaginative and for the purpose of this checklist exclude animal and picture books and nonfiction text.... Only books of 48 or more pages are included (Hoyle n.p.)

Some parameters have been modified. The original edition defined a series as "three or more books that have parallel titles or the same character." The three-volume criterion still stands; however, the definition of series has been expanded to include some thematic series because of their importance to the field. Titles that were originally published as part of a thematic series or were extensively advertised as such soon after their initial Organization
The bibliography is arranged alphabetically by series title with cross references to the main entry under alternate titles. The earlier edition used parenthesis to distinguish between titles assigned by the compiler and those listed in the publication; these have been deleted. Each entry lists series title, followed by the stated author of the series; if this is a known pseudonym, it is followed by the actual author's name in parenthesis. (This reverses the procedure used in the earlier edition.) The original publisher follows; reprint publishers are not given. If the original publication was a paperback edition, (PB) appears after the publisher's name. Because this edition includes three types of series which are often not of interest to collectors, they are marked as such on the line following the publishers' name: thematic, interactive, and easy reader. Although there are many interactive series, such as "Choose Your Own Adventure," only those series specifically intended for girls have been included here.

Volume numbers reflect order of publication; in some cases, such as JANICE DAY, this differs from the internal chronology of the series. Whenever possible, volume numbers correspond to the actual numbering of the series. Some listings are incomplete: - amb. - followed by an empty line indicates that records reveal the series had numbered volumes, but information about a particular title is unknown. An asterisk before the title indicates a copy is in the CLRC. Dates used are copyright dates, which are occasionally for the year prior to actual publication, especially for nineteenth-century series and January titles of contemporary series issued on a monthly basis.

Notes follow some series entries, clarifying material or conveying additional information. A "Related series" or "Related titles" line refers to other series or to single volumes, not issued as part of the series, in which major or secondary characters also appear. For example, Betsy Ray, of the BETSY-TACY series, also has a part in three books which are not in the series but which are of interest to many readers. A "See also" reference indicates that additional information or a continuation of the series may be found under another series title. Little Prudy, for example, appears in several series; "See also" references direct the reader to those entries.

4. *The Campfire Girls in High School

5. The Campfire Girls' Duty Call

1920

7. *The Campfire Girls' Red Cross Work

Note: Publication information on this series is still a puzzle. Many of the volumes have no copyright or publication date listed. Girls Series Companion 1990 notes that chapters from volumes 2, 4, and 5 also appear in three of the MARY LEE books. (Mary Lee is also a character in the Camp Fire Girls series.) The NUC attributes volumes 5 and 7 to Samuel Edward Lowe under the pseudonym Helen Hart, and it is possible that others in the series are his work. The NUC attributes another book published by Whitman, Marigold's Pony (not part of the series), to Lowe under the pseudonym Howard B.

Famous, but copies of Marigold's Pony have been seen with Rietz listed
author on the cover and Hart as author on the title page.

Possible related title: Helen Hart, Red Cross Girls' Duty Call (1917).

6. Four Mothers at Chautauqua

1913

Note: These books were not advertised as a series although they trace the lives of some of the main characters from the first two titles. Since a number of Pansy's books use this technique, it is possible there are others that belong on this list. Lothrop also issued a five-volume Chautauqua Girls Library: Four Girls at Chautauqua, Chautauqua Girls at Home, Ruth Erskine's Crosses, Links in Rebecca's Life (1878), From Different Standpoints (1878, co-authored by Faye Huntington); the last two titles have not been examined and may use related characters. A reading list from 1895 lists six "Chautauqua Stories": volumes 1-4 and The Hall in the Grove (1882) and Eighty-Seven (1887); the latter two may also be related titles.

3. Little Washington at School 1920

In 1925, Grosset & Dunlap reissued the first three books with slightly altered titles and with Lillian Elizabeth Roy as author, and added three more books to the series:

1. The Little Washingtons 1925

2. *The Little Washingtons’ Relatives 1925

3. *The Little Washingtons at School 1925

4. The Little Washingtons' Travels 1925

5. *The Little Washingtons' Holidays 1925

6. The Little Washingtons: Farmers 1926
Note: The NUC lists only a Grosset & Dunlap edition of volume 4, but shows a copyright date of 1918, which suggests that there may be an earlier Platt & Nourse edition, possibly with S. Waukley Roy as author. No verification of a previous publication has been found.

3. Mary Lee at Washington 1918
4. *Mary Lee's Friend 1920
5. College Days; Mary Lee and Her Friends Grow Up 1927

Note: This is a confusing series, at best. Girls' Series Companion 1990 notes that the first volume shows Rietz as author and that eight chapters were reprinted in her Campfire Girls' Weekend Party. It also explains that volume 2 shows Hart as author and some of those chapters appear in Campfire Girls in High School and that eleven chapters of volume 3 appear in Campfire Girl's Duty Call. (Mary Lee is a character in the CAMPFIRE GIRLS series.) The NUC attributes volume 3, Campfire Girls' Duty Call, and Campfire Girls' Red Cross Work to Samuel Edward Lowe, under the pseudonym Hart, but does not show the first two volumes under any of the authors listed here. Several unrelated titles have been seen with Rietz as author on the cover and Hart on the title page. The NUC lists Merrill, apparently a real person, as author of volumes 4 and 5, and her name appears on the volumes. Volume 5 was also apparently reissued as "Mary Lee's College Days: Mary Lee and Her College Chums Grow Up" and shows two copyright dates, 1927 and 1930.

Note: No publication information could be found for numbers missing titles and/or dates; their placement in the list is approximate. Whitman also published many other titles not dealing with movie, television, or comic characters not included here. This list also excludes Whitman Classics (retellings of classic stories). Although ANNIE OAKLEY, ANNETTE, JANE WITHERS, and JANET LENNON have their own listings, books from those series are also included in the above entry.

Note: This is a partial listing, arranged by publication date. Some volumes have been seen with numbers on the spine (shown here in brackets after the title), but the numbers do not match the series lists. Apparently titles go in and out of print rapidly, for almost none of the lists are identical. Four titles featuring the same character (vols. 7, 36, 58, 60) were issued in a special boxed set in 1984, titled The World of Christy.
