THE TEMPORALE NARRATIVES OF THE
*SOUTH ENGLISH LEGENDARY

Poems on the Life of Christ have in Middle English studies never commanded so much attention as lives of the saints, partly (one would think) because they are neither so numerous nor so superficially attractive, partly because they do not form so easily definable a genre. Whereas the majority of saints' lives remain straightforward narrative stories, the Life of Christ, although usually narrative, also supplies material for other forms of Middle English literature, for example lyric, meditation and homily¹. The difficulty of categorizing even the narrative Lives of Christ may be seen from the revised Manual of Writings in Middle English, Vol. 2², where the Romance of the Resurrection of MS Ashmole 61 and the Metrical Life of Christ of BM Addit. MS 39996 are classed with the prose Pepysian Gospel Harmony under "Translations and Paraphrases of the Bible", whilst the Harrowing of Hell and the various poems on the Childhood of Christ must be sought under "Legends of Jesus and Mary". This artificial distinction between Biblical and apocryphal sources is not useful, for these are poems of the same style and kind.

* My researches into the South English Legendary have been greatly aided by grants from the Research Fund of the University of London, which I here gratefully acknowledge.

¹ When saints' lives occur in homilies, they usually (as in the Festial or the Northern Homily Collection) contribute little more than a self-contained story only loosely related to any true homiletic purpose.

² J. Burke Severs, ed., A Manual of the Writings in Middle English 1066-1500, 2 (Hamden, Conn., 1970), here referred to as the 'revised Manual'. The poem in Ashmole 61 is by it retitled Resurrection and Apparitions, and the Pepysian Gospel Harmony, the Prose Life of Christ.
