Abstract:

The Ido philosophy is a proposal to clarify the meaning of today's warrior pathway. The author tries to answer the following questions: In what way should we understand epistemology? How do we describe the human being and the phenomenon of martial arts? What is the meaning of the terms 'ido' and 'ido kan'? What ethics, values and rules are prominent in the Ido philosophy? What is the symbolic content of the Ido. This is a single case study, involving a content analysis of literature and the wider context of hermeneutic phenomenology. Epistemology is understood here as a way of understanding the martial arts by treating them as a way of reaching the truth about the philosophy of martial arts. In both cases it is the practice that is their own experience. Man and the phenomenon of martial arts (ontology) here we treat holistically. 'Ido' is an ambiguous concept. In the Ido philosophy we understand it in the first place as the principle of 'continuous movement'. The prevailing ethic is the tradition of chivalry, which is also accentuated in symbolism. The Ido philosophy, as an anthropology of martial arts, the Warrior Way, draws from the wisdom of the East and the West, but not uncritically. Normative ethics realizes the ideal of Homo Creator Nobilis. This indicates the way in which value requires great effort, self-discipline and perseverance, especially on timeless, higher values, such as fidelity, truth, and the pursuit of wisdom.
