Hitler's daughter

Fiction Gateway: Enriching the curriculum with children's literature, The French, Jackie

Abstract: Anna, Mark, Ben and Little Tracey wait for the school bus every day and Anna tells imaginative stories to pass the time, but there is something strangely compelling about the story of Hitler's daughter who knew nothing about concentration camps or the falling of bombs. Anna recounts how Heidi is not a blonde, athletic, perfect specimen Hitler would be proud to show off as his daughter, so she is concealed with her governess, Fr ulein Gelber, in a remote village. Was Anna's grandmother really just an ordinary girl who arrived in Australia after the war, or did she tell Anna a momentous secret about herself before she died?
