

Session timeout

Your previous session has ended.

OK

Download Here

BROWSE

searching Humanities & Social Sciences Collection

CHANGE DATABASES

BACK TO TABLE OF CONTENTS

An error has occurred

Peer Reviewed

Full content available

Place-based education and the SHARE ...

Australian curriculum

Literacy Learning: The Middle Years

Volume 21 Issue 3 (Oct 2013)

Bartholomaeus, Pam<sup>1</sup>

Abstract: In this paper I explain that place-based education has much to offer middle school students, including promoting literacy learning and learning in general. Finding connections to place are important and valuable experiences for today's young people in a globalised era. After providing some background information about student motivation and engagement, literature about place-based education is summarised. Three examples of place-based education are discussed before concluding with several suggestions of place-based activities that can be included in the English classroom.

FULL TEXT PDF (129KB)

---

To cite this article: Bartholomaeus, Pam. Place-based education and the Australian curriculum [online]. Literacy Learning: The Middle Years, Vol. 21, No. 3, Oct 2013: 17-23. Availability:

<<https://search.informit.com.au/documentSummary;dn=629908782369585;res=IELHS>>
ISSN: 1320-5692. [cited 20 Jul 18].

Personal Author: Bartholomaeus, Pam;

Source: Literacy Learning: The Middle Years, Vol. 21, No. 3, Oct 2013: 17-23

Document Type: Journal Article

ISSN: 1320-5692

Subject: Place-based education; Education--Curricula; Classroom environment; Outdoor education;

Peer Reviewed: Yes

Affiliation: (1) Lecturer, School of Education, Flinders University, South Australia

Database: HUMANITIES & SOCIAL SCIENCES COLLECTION

 View desktop version
Informit v4.0 Copyright © 2015