Whatever Happened to the Age of Art Criticism?

Art Monthly Australia

Issue 209 (May 2008)

Denholm, Michael

Abstract: The evolution of the phrase 'The Age of criticism' and its relevance in relation to art is discussed. The power of the critic has declined as the importance of the market for art has increased; and what is important is the fact that the decline of serious criticism is a problem for everyone as it trivializes our existence in an age of relativism.
