Abstract

The results of social innovation are all around us.

Self-help health groups and self-build housing; telephone help lines and telethon fundraising; neighbourhood nurseries and neighbourhood wardens; Wikipedia and the Open University; complementary medicine, holistic health and hospices; microcredit and consumer cooperatives; charity shops and the fair trade movement; zero carbon housing schemes and community wind farms; restorative justice and community courts. All are examples of social innovation – new ideas that work to meet pressing unmet needs and improve peoples' lives.

This report is about how we can improve societies' capacities to solve their problems. It is about old and new methods for mobilising the ubiquitous intelligence that exists within any society.
