Racism in literature

Australia -- race relations -- In literature

Summary	This text looks at the ways in which Australia's indigenous people are represented in books for children. These varying representations have been shaped by the assumptions of different generations of Australians.
Notes	1. Colonial discourse and its fictions -- 2. Religious discourse and gender and race in children's books -- 4. Speaking for the aboriginal: White on black in criticism and fiction: contemporary dilemmas -- 7. Towards reconciliation? Crosscultural encounters in the 'new' colony texts.
