Pronouns of Address in the Book of Mormon.

Abstract

The first section of this thesis is a diachronic examination of second person pronouns in English with special focus on variations in usage such as pronominal shifting between thou (and related forms) and ye (and related forms), as well as second person pronoun usage in the English Bible (especially the King James Version) with a similar focus. From the thirteenth century on variations in usage have been common.

The second section is a synchronic examination of second person pronouns as used by Joseph Smith and some of his contemporaries, followed by an analysis of these pronouns in the Book of Mormon. Also included is a brief discussion of textual variants and revisions, especially as they pertain to second person pronoun usage and pronominal shiftings in the Book of Mormon.

This pronoun usage seems more characteristic of biblical or Hebraic usage than that of English historically.
